OVERVIEW

The All-Ohio Institute is the creation of the Public Psychiatry Program at University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center and Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine. Designed as a multidisciplinary celebration of community mental health services, the All-Ohio has attracted more than 400 psychiatrists, social workers, nurses, and other mental health professionals, as well as consumers and family members, to each conference since 1995.

This year's conference will address the impact by the State of Ohio's behavioral health redesign on the clinical care being delivered by community mental health providers to consumers of service. Our goal has always been to deliver evidence-based services for all aspects of community care. Integrating physical health care into behavioral health care, addiction services, and telemedicine are just a few ways the community responded to change. This conference will review progress to date and cast an eye to the future for Ohioans in need of care for serious mental illness and substance use disorders in the public system of care. The institute also features workshops and a poster session highlighting specific skills training while featuring the best of new programs, curricula and clinical practices from around the state.

EDUCATIONAL DESIGN AND METHODOLOGY

This program will use large and small group lectures, panel and participatory discussions, as well as a poster session to present materials. Unique clinical services, curricula, and research in community mental health services from around the state will be showcased.

The commitment to exceptional patient care begins with revolutionary discovery. University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center is an affiliate of Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine, a national leader in medical research and education and consistently ranked among the top research medical schools in the country by U.S. News & World Report. Through their faculty appointments at Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine, physicians at UH Cleveland Medical Center are advancing medical care through innovative research and discovery that bring the latest treatment options to the patient.
